World Rowing Under 23 Championships General Information
The World Rowing Under 23 Championships showcase up-and-coming athletes who are no longer eligible to compete at the junior level but are still in need of further development to rank among top senior elite rowers. Held for the first time in 1976 in Macon, France, under the title "Seniors Match," it eventually became the "Nations Cup" in 1992. FISA's 2005 Extraordinary Congress in Dubrovnik, Croatia, voted to upgrade the World Rowing Under 23 Regatta to world rowing championship status. The first official World Rowing Under 23 Championships were raced in 2004. Approximately 600 athletes from 40 countries compete annually.

Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Amsterdam was founded in the Middle Ages near a dam on the River Amstel. The city truly blossomed in the early 17th century, where it became the world's largest centre for trade and art. The historic heart of the city known as the 'Grachtengordel' (canal ring) has remained beautifully intact to this day. Holland has a population of 16,847,007 (July 2011 est.) of which 752,162 inhabitants live in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

Highlights from the 2010 World Rowing Under 23 Championships

The U.S. won gold medals in the women's eight, women's four and women's pair to highlight racing at the 2010 World Rowing Under 23 Championships in Brest, Belarus. The men's eight won silver, and the lightweight men's four, women's single sculls and the women's double sculls all took home bronze medals. The seven medals set a record for the United States' performance.

In the women's eight, the crew of coxswain Ariel Frost, Taylor Ritzel, Grace Luczak, Emily Regan, Kara Kohler, Mary Jeghers, Kerry Simmonds, Jennifer Cromwell and Olivia Coffey sat in second place at the 500-meter mark. The crew took a move during the second quarter of the race, and walked away from the field in the second 1,000 meters crossing the line in a time of 6:31.97.

In the women's pair, Felice Mueller and Ashley Kroll built nearly a five-second lead in the first 1,000-meters and held on to defeat Romania by 0.31 seconds, setting a new Under 23 World Best Time of 7:14.07. The duo broke the old record by 0.87 seconds.

In the women's four, Sara Hendershot, Julie Smith, Hannah Malvin and Michaela Strand battled Australia down the course to win with a time 6:40.33. With 500 meters to go, Australia held a 1.33-second advantage on the American crew, but the U.S. made a furious charge over the final stretch to grab the lead and win by 2.86 seconds.

The men's eight of coxswain Zach Vlahos, Michael Gennaro, Nareg Guregian, Tom Dethlefs, Ty Otto, Blaise Didier, Rob Munn, Nick Lucey and Sam Walker battled Germany the entire way down the course before coming home with the silver medal. The U.S. trailed the Germans by less than one-tenth of a second at the 500-meter mark before taking a 0.45-second lead at the midway point of the race. However, Germany made a big push just after the 1,000-meter mark to grab a two-second lead going into the final 500 meters. Germany crossed the finish line with a time of 5:44.78, with the U.S. finishing in a 5:47.48.

In the final of the women's single sculls, Lindsay Meyer came from behind to win the bronze medal in a 7:55.04. Meyer sat in sixth position after the first quarter of the race before moving up to fourth as the scullers passed the 1,000-meter mark. Then, she rowed through Norway's Tale Gjoertz to move into the bronze-medal position. Meyer tried to row down Estonia's Kaisa Pajusalu in the final 500 meters but came up just short, missing silver by 0.57 seconds.

The lightweight men's four of Robin Prendes, Ed King, William Newell and Austin Meyer got off the line in second position before Italy and then Great Britain took the lead. The British boat slowly inched ahead during the second half of the race, while the U.S. battled Italy down the stretch for the silver medal, coming up just short at the line. They finished with a time of 6:24.70.

In the women's double sculls, twin sisters Elizabeth and Rebecca Donald took third position off the line, building a three-second advantage on Romania at the midway point of the race. Romania tried to chase down the U.S. over the final 1,000 meters, but the American boat held on to win bronze. Germany pulled away to win the gold medal in a 7:03.47, with Belarus taking silver in a 7:08.28. The U.S. clocked a 7:20.46, with Romania finishing in a 7:20.56.
