Since the modern Olympics began in 1896, there have been 27 Summer Olympic Games in 22 different cities. This year will mark the first time in history that the Olympics have been held in South America.

Rio de Janeiro was awarded the 2016 Olympics in 2009. Located in the Southeast region of Brazil, Rio is the second largest city in the country with a population of 6.4 million and is the most visited city in South America.

Rowing has been a part of the Olympics from the beginning of the modern Games. Women’s rowing was first introduced to the Olympic schedule in 1976. Lightweight rowing boat classes were introduced in 1996. There are now 14 boat classes contested in the Olympics with 550 athletes participating.

The Rio Olympic rowing venue is located at Rodrigo de Freitas Lagoon in the Copacabana district and features a breathtaking mountain backdrop, the Tijuca Forrest and the Christ the Redeemer statue at Corcovado. The lagoon is home to Rio’s top rowing clubs and has hosted a number of major rowing regattas, including the 2007 Pan American Games and the 2015 World Rowing Junior Championships, which served as the test event for the 2016 Olympic Games.

The summer Games were last held in London in 2012. The U.S. won gold in the women’s eight and bronze in the men’s four and women’s quadruple sculls.

Initial qualification for the Olympics is held at the preceding World Rowing Championships. At the 2015 World Rowing Championships in Aiguebelette, France, the United States qualified four men’s and six women’s boat classes, including the men’s four, lightweight men’s four, men’s pair, lightweight men’s double sculls, women’s single sculls, women’s pair, women’s double sculls, women’s quadruple sculls, women’s lightweight double sculls and women’s eight.

The men’s eight was added to the U.S. competition schedule after qualifying for the Games at the Final Olympic Qualification Regatta in May in Lucerne, Switzerland. The U.S. will not have crews racing in the men’s single sculls, men’s double sculls or men’s quadruple sculls.
Boat-By-Boat Preview

Men’s Crews

Lightweight Men’s Double Sculls (LM2x)

Representing the U.S. in the lightweight men’s double sculls are Andrew Campbell, Jr. (New Canaan, Conn.) and Joshua Konieczny (Millbury, Ohio). Campbell has rowed on 11 national teams at every age level. He attempted to make the 2012 Olympic Team, winning the U.S. trials in the lightweight double, but did not qualify the boat at the 2012 Final Olympic Qualification Regatta.

He won consecutive gold medals in the lightweight men’s single sculls at the 2013 and 2014 World Rowing Under 23 Championships and took bronze in the event at the 2012 World Rowing Senior and Junior Championships. Campbell and Konieczny finished eighth at the 2015 World Rowing Championships, where they qualified the boat class for Rio. They earned their place on the Olympic roster by winning the 2016 U.S. Olympic & Paralympic Team Trials in Sarasota, Fla.

Konieczny is a four-time national team athlete. He finished 10th in the event at the 2014 World Rowing Championships and sixth in the lightweight four at the 2013 World Rowing Under 23 Championships. The U.S. last raced in the event at the 2004 Olympic Games, finishing seventh.

Men’s Pair (M2-)

After winning Olympic trials and setting a home course record at the USRowing Princeton Training Center on Mercer Lake in West Windsor, N.J., Nareg Guregian (North Hills, Calif.) and Anders Weiss (Barrington, R.I.) will represent the U.S. in the men’s pair.

A crew that came together late in the spring, Guregian and Weiss are a combination of veteran and rookie. Guregian, a seven-time national team athlete, has competed on three senior world championship teams and won a national collegiate championship while an undergraduate at the University of California. Weiss rowed on the 2013 U.S. Under 23 National Team and won a silver medal in the eight. This is his first senior national team. The U.S. finished eighth in the event in 2012 in London. The U.S. won silver in the event in 2000.

Men’s Four (M4-)

Chosen from the USRowing Training Center men’s selection camp, Seth Weil (Menlo Park, Calif.), Henrik Rummel (Pittsford, N.Y.), Matt Miller (Fairfax, Va.) and Charlie Cole (New Canaan, Conn.) will represent the U.S. in the men’s four. The U.S. won bronze in the event in 2012. Cole and Rummel return from that crew.

Weil has rowed in the four at the last three world championships, winning silver in 2014 and bronze in 2013. He was in the crew that qualified the boat class last summer. Miller has rowed in the eight at the past two world championships. The U.S. has competed in the event at 18 previous Olympic Games. The last gold medal came in 1960.

Lightweight Men’s Four (LM4-)

The U.S. qualified the lightweight men’s four with a seventh-place finish at the 2015 World Rowing Championships. Selected to race in this crew are Tyler Nase (Phoenixville, Pa.), Edward (Mix) King (Ironton, Mo.), Robin Prendes (Miami, Fla.) and Anthony Fahden (Lafayette, Calif.). Nase, King and Fahden return from the 2015 crew. Both Fahden and Prendes were in the crew that finished eighth in the London Olympics.

The U.S. has had a crew in the boat class in five Olympic Games. Its best finish was a bronze medal in 1996.

Men’s Eight (M8+)

The men’s eight will go into the Rio competition as the most internationally tested U.S. crew on the roster. It has twice gone to the line and faced some of the crews that are entered in the 2016 Olympics including Poland, The Netherlands, Germany, Great Britain, New Zealand and Russia.

The U.S. faced those crews in Lucerne, Switzerland, at the 2016 Final Olympic Qualification Regatta – where they won and qualified the boat class for Rio – and at World Rowing Cup II, where they captured bronze. The lineups in some of those crews could change, but the U.S. lineup that won the 2016 Final Olympic Qualification Regatta and secured a spot in Rio will not.

The crew is comprised of coxswain Sam Ojserkis (Linwood, N.J.), Austin Hack (Old Lyme, Conn.), Rob Munn (Redmond, Wash.), Mike DiSanto (Boston, Mass.), Steve Kasprzyk (Cinnaminson, N.J.), Glenn Ochal (Philadelphia, Pa.), Alex Karwoski (Hollis, N.H.), Hans Struzyna (Kirkland, Wash.) and Sam Dommer (Folsom, Calif.).

Of the nine athletes, three return to the eight from last summer including Hack, Karwoski and Dommer. Ochal, a London men’s four bronze medalist, and Kasprzyk, who was in the eight that finished inches out of the medals in 2012, provide a veteran presence in the crew. Ojserkis, Struzyna, DiSanto and Munn are newcomers.

The U.S. has had a men’s eight in competition since the inception of the modern Olympic Games in 1896. The U.S. last won the event in 2004 in Athens.
Women’s Crews

Women’s Single Sculls (W1x)

Two-time Olympian Gevvie Stone (Newton, Mass.) makes her second appearance in the Olympic Games in Rio. After finishing seventh in London, Stone took a year off from competition to complete her medical degree at Tufts University Medical School. Upon her return to the single, Stone won trials in 2014 and finished ninth in the World Rowing Championships. Stone came back in 2015 and had the best year of her career, finishing fourth at the world championships and winning bronze and silver in world cup competition. The U.S. last won an Olympics medal in the event in 2008, when Michelle Guerette brought home silver.

Women’s Pair (W2-)

The U.S. came within a breath of medaling in the women’s pair at the 2012 Olympics. The U.S. had strong finishes in the event the last two years, taking bronze in 2015 and silver in 2014. This year has seen the emergence of a new crew in Grace Luczak (Ann Arbor, Mich.) and Felice Mueller (Cleveland, Ohio). After winning National Selection Regatta I in March, Luczak and Mueller won the event at World Rowing Cup II and earned their nominations to the 2016 team. The U.S. won silver in the event in 2008.

Luczak and Mueller are no strangers to the pair. They won the event together at the 2011 World Rowing Under 23 Championships and set a world record. Luczak is a nine-time national team athlete and was in the four that won gold in 2015. Mueller is a seven-time national team athlete and was in the pair that won bronze in 2015.

Women’s Double Sculls (W2x)

Ellen Tomek (Flushing, Mich.) and Meghan O’Leary (Baton Rouge, La.) have represented the U.S. in the women’s double sculls at the last three world championships. They won bronze in 2013, finished sixth in 2014 and 11th in 2015. Tomek is an eight-time national team athlete and a 2008 Olympian. She finished fifth in the event in Beijing.

Tomek and O’Leary qualified the boat class at the 2015 World Championships and won trials in Sarasota, Fla., where they earned their place on the Olympic roster. The U.S. finished sixth in the event in 2012.

Lightweight Women’s Double Sculls (LW2x)

Rowing in their first Olympics are Kate Bertko (Oakland, Calif.) and Devery Karz (Park City, Utah). Bertko is a seven-time national team athlete and has won consecutive bronze medals in world championship competition in 2014 and 2015. Karz was in the boat that finished 11th in the event and qualified the boat class for Rio. Bertko and Karz won trials to earn their place on the 2016 team. The U.S. finished 11th in London.

Women’s Quadruple Sculls (W4x)

The United States enters the 2016 Olympic Games as the defending world champion and London bronze medalists in this event. Returning to the crew that took bronze in 2012 are Adrienne Martelli (University Place, Wash.) and Megan Kalmoe (St. Croix Falls, Wis.). Kalmoe also was part of the crew that won at the 2015 World Rowing Championships.

Tracy Eisser (Fair Lawn, N.J.) returns to the crew from 2015. Filling out the boat is Grace Latz (Jackson, Mich.), who was in the quad that won bronze in 2014 and in the four that won gold in 2015.

Women’s Eight (W8+)

The U.S. enters the Games as the two-time defending Olympic champions, having won gold in 2008 and 2012. Preceding that, the U.S. won silver in 2004. In addition to the two Olympic gold medals, the U.S. has won a string of eight world championships (10 consecutive world and Olympic titles) and holds the world record (5:54.16) set in 2013 in Lucerne.

In its most recent competition, the U.S. won gold at World Rowing Cup II in Lucerne. Following that regatta, USRowing announced the women’s crew that will compete in Brazil. The crew has a new blend of youth and veteran experience with three-time Olympian Eleanor Logan (Boothbay Harbor, Maine), two-time Olympian Meghan Musnicki (Naples, N.Y.) and eight-time national team athlete and five-time world champion in the event Amanda Polk (Pittsburgh, Pa.). Logan won gold in the event in 2008 and 2012. Musnicki was in the 2012 crew, and Polk was an alternate for London.

First-time Olympians include coxswain Katelin Snyder (Detroit, Mich.), Amanda Elmore (West Lafayette, Ind.), Tessa Gobbo (Chesterfield, N.H.), Emily Regan (Buffalo, N.Y.), Lauren Schmetterling (Mooresstown, N.J.) and Kerry Simmonds (San Diego, Calif.).

The nine women in the U.S. eight have a combined 29 world championship and Olympic gold medals among them.
About USRowing
USRowing is a nonprofit membership organization recognized by the United States Olympic Committee as the national governing body for the sport of rowing in the United States. USRowing selects, trains and manages the teams that represent the U.S. in international competition, including the World Championships, Pan American Games, Olympic Games and Paralympic Games.

More than 85,000 individuals and 1,300 member organizations strong, USRowing serves and promotes the sport on all levels of competition. USRowing membership reflects the spectrum of American rowers – juniors, collegians, masters and those who row for recreation, competition or fitness.

In 1982, the United States Rowing Association was formed by the merger of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, founded in 1872, and the National Women’s Rowing Association, established in the early 1960s. USRowing brought these two organizations together with a name incorporating both men and women and reflecting the broader interests of rowing. In 1985, the organization moved from Philadelphia, Pa., to Indianapolis, Ind., home of several other Olympic sport governing bodies; and in 1994, Indianapolis became the only U.S. city to host a world rowing championship. In February 2006, USRowing moved its corporate headquarters to Princeton, N.J.

USRowing registers hundreds of regattas across the country each year, ensuring they are run under specific safety guidelines. The association also provides programs to educate referees and coaches. USRowing stages national championship regattas annually and conducts regional championships and national team selection events.

USRowing is a member of the United States Olympic Committee and Federation Internationale des Societes D’Aviron (FISA), the international rowing federation.

Viewer's Guide & Frequently Asked Questions

The Race
All events at the Olympic Games are 2,000 meters, or approximately 1.25 miles. The racecourse is divided into six lanes and each 500-meter section is marked with buoys.

The race begins with all boats aligned at the start in the lanes they’ve been assigned. Individuals in each lane hold the stern of each boat steady while an official, known as the aligner, ensures that each boat is even with the others and squarely facing the course.

Each crew is allowed one false start; two means disqualification. If within the first 100 meters there is legitimate equipment breakage (e.g., an oar snaps in two), the race will be stopped and restarted with repaired equipment.

The stroke rate (the number of rowing strokes per minute that a crew is taking) is high at the start – maybe 45 to even 50 for an eight, 38 to 42 for a single scull. Then, the crew will “settle” into the body of the race and drop the rating back – 38 to 40 for an eight, 32 to 36 for a single. The coach and the way the race is going determine when the crew will sprint, but finishing stroke rates of 46+ in the last 200 meters aren’t unheard of. However, higher stroke rates are not always indicative of speed. A strong, technically talented crew may be able to cover more water faster than a less capable crew rowing a high stroke rate.

Unlike canoe/kayak competitions, rowers are allowed to leave their lanes without penalty, so long as they do not interfere with anyone else’s opportunity to win. An official follows the crews to ensure safety and fairness.

Despite the exhaustion that follows each race, the crew will row for five to 10 minutes afterwards in order to cool down. In rowing, the medal ceremonies include the shells. The three medal-winning crews row to the awards dock, climb out of their shells and receive their medals before rowing away.

The Stroke
The whole body is involved in moving a shell through the water. Although rowing tends to look like an upper body sport, the strength of the rowing stroke comes from the legs.

The stroke is made up of four parts: catch, drive, finish and recovery. As the stroke begins, the rower is coiled forward on the sliding seat, with knees bent and arms outstretched. At the catch, the athlete drops the oar blade vertically into the water.

At the beginning of the drive, the body position doesn’t change – all the work is done by the legs. As the upper body begins to uncoil, the arms begin their work, drawing the oar blades through the water. Continuing the drive, the rowers move their hands quickly into the body, which by this time is in a slight “layback” position, requiring strong abdominal muscles.

During the finish, the oar handle is moved down, drawing the oar blade out of the water. At the same time, the rower “feathers” the oar – turning the oar handle – so that the oar blade changes from a vertical position to a horizontal one. The oar remains out of the water as the rower begins recovery, moving the hands away from the body and past the knees. The body follows the hands and the sliding seat moves forward until, knees bent, the rower is ready for the next catch.

The Equipment
Oars
Oars move the boat through the water and act as balancers. Sweep oars are longer than sculling oars and may have wooden handles instead of rubber grips. The shaft of the oar is made of extremely lightweight carbon fiber instead of the heavier wood used years ago. The popular “hatchet” blade – named because of its cleaver-like shape – is about 20 percent larger than previous blades. Its larger surface area has made it the almost-universal choice among elite-level rowers.

The Boats – Sculls and Shells
All rowing boats can be called shells. Rowing boats with scullers in them (each person having two oars) are called sculls, e.g. single scull, double scull, quadruple scull. So, all sculls are shells but not vice versa. Originally made of wood, today’s boats – especially those used in competition – are made of honeycombed carbon fiber. They are light and appear fragile but are crafted to be strong and stiff in the water.

The smallest boat – the single scull – is approximately 27 feet long and as narrow as 10 inches across. At 58 feet, the eight is the longest boat on the water. The oars are attached to the boat with riggers, which provide a fulcrum for the levering action of rowing. Generally, sweep rowers sit in configurations that have the oars alternating from side to side along the boat. But sometimes, the coach will rig the boat so that two consecutive rowers have their oars on the same side in order to equalize individual athlete power.
Rowing Quick Facts

- Rowing is one of the original sports in the modern Olympic Games. Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the modern Olympics, was a rower.

- Eight-oared shells are about 60-feet long, about 20 yards on a football field.

- Rowing was the first intercollegiate sport contested in the United States. Yale College founded the first collegiate boat club in the U.S. in 1843.

- Physiologically, rowers are superb examples of physical conditioning. Cross-country skiers and long distance speed skaters are comparable in terms of the physical demands the sport places on the athletes.

- An eight, which carries more than three-quarters of a ton (1,750 pounds), may weigh as little as 200 pounds. The boats are made of fiberglass composite material.

- Singles may be as narrow as 10 inches across, weigh only 30.86 pounds, and stretch nearly 27-feet long.

- FISA, the international governing body of the sport, requires all eights used in international competition to be sectional, so that crews who must disassemble and ship their boats overseas in standard shipping containers will not be at a disadvantage.

- The first amateur sport organization was a rowing club, Philadelphia’s Schuylkill Navy, founded in 1858. From 1920 through 1956, the United States won the gold medal in the men’s eight at every Olympic Games.

- The first national governing body for a sport in the United States was for rowing. Founded as the National Association for Amateur Oarsmen in 1872, it was changed in 1982 to the United States Rowing Association.

- FISA, the first international sports federation, was founded in 1892.

- Dr. Benjamin Spock, the famous doctor, was an Olympic rower in 1924 and won a gold medal in the eight. Gregory Peck rowed at the University of California in 1937.

- Physiologists claim that rowing a 2,000-meter race – equivalent to 1.25 miles – is equal to playing back-to-back basketball games. All Olympic events are contested over a 2,000-meter course with six lanes. In the 1976, 1980, and 1984 Olympics, women raced 1,000 meters.
Glossary of Rowing Terms

Bow: The forward section of the boat. The first part of the boat to cross the finish line. Also, the person in the seat closest to the bow, who crosses the finish line first.

Button: A wide collar on the oar that keeps it from slipping through the oarlock.

Coxswain: The person who steers the shell and is the on-the-water coach for the crew.

Deck: The part of the shell at the bow and stern that is covered with fiberglass cloth or a thin plastic.

Ergometer: Rowers call it an “erg.” It’s a rowing machine that closely approximates the actual rowing motion. The rowers’ choice is the Concept2, which utilizes a flywheel and a digital readout so that the rower can measure his “strokes per minute” and the distance covered.

Gate: The bar across the oarlock that keeps the oar in place.

Lightweight: Refers to the rowers, not the boats; there is a maximum weight for each rower in a lightweight event as well as a boat average.

Oar: Used to drive the boat forward; rowers do not use paddles.

Port: The left side of the boat, while facing forward, in the direction of the movement.

Power 10: A call for rowers to do 10 of their best, most powerful strokes. It’s a strategy used to pull ahead of a competitor.

Repechage: The second-chance race, which ensures that everyone has two chances to advance from preliminary races since there is no seeding in the heats.

Rigger: The triangular shaped metal device that is bolted onto the side of the boat and holds the oars.

Run: The run is the distance the shell moves during one stroke. You can figure it by looking for the distance between the puddles made by the same oar.

Sculls: One of the two disciplines of rowing, where scullers use two oars or sculls.

Shell: Can be used interchangeably with boat.

Slide: The set of runners for the wheels of each seat in the boat.

Starboard: The right side of the boat, while facing forward, in the direction of movement.

Stern: The rear of the boat; the direction the rowers are facing.

Straight: Refers to a shell without a coxswain, i.e. a straight four or straight pair.

Stretcher or Foot stretcher: Where the rower’s feet go. The stretcher consists of two inclined footrests, which hold the rower’s shoes. The rower’s shoes are bolted into the footrests.

Stroke: The rower who sits closest to the stern. The stroke sets the rhythm for the boat; others behind him must follow his cadence.

Sweep: One of the two disciplines of rowing, where rowers use only one oar. Pairs (for two people), fours (for four people) and the eight are sweep boats. Pairs and fours may or may not have a coxswain. Eights always have a coxswain.

Swing: The hard-to-define feeling when near-perfect synchronization of motion occurs in the shell, enhancing the performance and speed.
