About the 2018 World Rowing Under 23 Championships

The 2018 World Rowing Under 23 Championships will take place on the Lake Malta rowing course in west-central Poland along the Warta River. This event is a five-day regatta for athletes in the U23 age category. A rower may compete in an under 23 rowing event until December 31 of the year in which they reach the age of 22.

About the Venue

ul. Władysława Reymonta 35,
60-751 Poznań, Poland

The Lake Malta regatta course is located in the center of Poznan. It is one of the most modern venues in the world and, over the last 20 years, has hosted large international events in water sports. Poznan hosted the 2007 and 2015 European Rowing Championships, 2009 World Rowing Championships, 2016 World Rowing Cup III and the 2017 World Rowing Cup II.

Poznan is located in west-central Poland along the Warta River. It is the fifth largest city in Poland with a population of approximately 550,000.

The origins of the first Poznan rowing club go back to the year 1904. Its initiator and founder was Maciej Wierzbinski, who settled then in Poznan after a long-term stay in England. In 1912, the Tryton Poznan Association was established, and in 1919, the Students’ Sport Association began life. In the same year, the Polish Federation of Rowing Associations (Polski Związek Towarzystw Wioślarskich, PZTW) was established in Poznan. It was one of the first sports federations created in the reborn Poland and was founded by 13 sports clubs. In 1924, Polish rowers took part in the Olympic Games in Paris for the first time, entering two crews, a single and a four, into competition. They won their first Olympic medal (bronze) during their second Olympic appearance in 1928 in Amsterdam. From 1925, Polish rowing crews participated in the European Championships until their last appearance in 1938. The rowers returned to the European Championships after the Second World War in 1947, in Lucerne.

Media Transport

A shuttle service will operate between the official hotels and the regatta venue. Due to the limited parking space available at the facility, teams will not be able to use their own transport vehicles for access to the venue (only one car per team is allowed), and therefore, they should use the official transport service provided by the organizing committee. The official transport service will operate from July 23-29. Transport before these dates is available upon request. The service will operate from 07:30 to 19:30 hours on training days and from 06:00 to 20:00 hours on racing days.

Event Preview

The U.S. will compete in all 22 boat classes over the five-day event. These classes include the men’s and women’s single sculls, lightweight single sculls, double sculls, lightweight double sculls, quadruple sculls, lightweight quadruple sculls, pair, lightweight pair, four, four with coxswain, and eight.

The U.S. roster includes 19 athletes returning from the 2017 Under 23 National Team including Elise Beuke, Chris Carlson, Claire Collins, Ben Davison, Olivia Farrar, James Francis, Michael Grady, Meghan Gutknecht, Janice Hagerman, Emily Kallfelz, Brigid Kennedy, Arne Landboe, Danny Madden, Reilly Milne, Brooke Pierson, Jacob Plihal, Alison Rusher, Leigh Warner, and Carlisle Wheeler.

Twenty-eight colleges and universities are represented across the 72-person roster. Last year, the United States National Team took home five medals at the 2017 World Rowing Under 23 Championships in Plovdiv, Bulgaria. The men’s lightweight four and women’s eight won silver, while the women’s single, women’s pair and men’s four with coxswain all took bronze in their respective finals.

Men’s Single Sculls (BM1x)
Craftsbury Sculling Center’s Ben Davison (Inverness, Fla.) is one of the most experienced rowers on the U.S. squad, having competed at the junior, under 23 and senior levels.

In 2017, Davison rowed in the men’s four with coxswain that placed third at the World Rowing Under 23 Championships. He also competed in the men’s double sculls with partner John Graves at the 2017 World Rowing Championships, finishing ninth overall. In 2016 at the World Rowing Under 23 Championships, Davison raced in the single sculls, placing seventh. That same year, he was part of the quadruple sculls crew that placed third at the European and Final Olympic Qualification Regatta.

Davison took seventh place in the single sculls at his second World Rowing Under 23 Championships in 2015. In 2014, he finished sixth in the single sculls at the World Rowing Junior Championships and then 21st in the single at his first World Rowing Under 23 Championships.

Canada took gold last year in the event, with South Africa and Poland rounding out the medal positions. The U.S. finished in 22nd place. This year, Davison will race 27 other scullers.

Lightweight Men’s Single Sculls (BLM1x)

Zachary Heese (Pelham, N.Y.) will represent the U.S. in his first international racing appearance against 27 other scullers. Brazil, Mexico and Italy took home the medals in 2017.

Women’s Single Sculls (BW1x)

No stranger to the international stage, Princeton University’s Emily Kallfelz (Jamestown, R.I.) is a two-time World Rowing Under 23 Championships athlete. In 2017, Kallfelz raced in the women’s single sculls and placed third. In 2016, Kallfelz placed fourth in the women’s double sculls.

Sweden and Switzerland took home the top two spots ahead of Kallfelz last year. This year, the five-time national team member will take on scullers from 18 other nations.

Lightweight Women’s Single Sculls (BLW1x)

Brigid Kennedy (East Greenwich, R.I.) is a U23 National Team veteran, having finished 11th in the lightweight double sculls in 2017 and eighth in the lightweight quadruple sculls in 2016. New to the single category this year, she will face off against 19 other boats. Last year, the Netherlands placed first, followed by Italy and South Africa.

Men’s Double Sculls (BM2x)
Evan Dwinell (Tallahassee, Fla.) placed fourth in the four at the 2016 World Rowing Junior Championships and Joshua Bilchik (Brookline, Mass.) is racing for the first time internationally. Last year, the U.S. placed 21st overall in the event. Great Britain claimed first place, with France and Lithuania coming in second and third. Dwinell and Bilchik will take on 17 other crews.

Lightweight Men’s Double Sculls (BLM2x)

Artym Hayda (Providence, R.I.) and Thomas Satterthwaite (Cranston, R.I.) are both new to the U23 international circuit. Satterthwaite finished 29th in the double sculls at the 2017 World Rowing Junior Championships. Last year, the U.S. placed 22nd in the event. Italy took gold in a narrow finish over Denmark and Spain, who both finished within a second of first place.

The U.S. is one of 23 entries in the event.

Women’s Double Sculls (BW2x)

Ashley Johnson (Buffalo, N.Y.) and Sydney Michalak (Peterborough, N.H.) are both racing for the first time at the under 23 world championships. The U.S. narrowly missed the medal podium in 2017. Belarus took gold, followed by Italy and Greece. The bow of Greece’s boat in 2017 will repeat her appearance in the double this year. Johnson and Michalak are part of a 21-boat field.

Lightweight Women’s Double Sculls (BLW2x)

Isabella Garcia-Camargo (Seattle, Wash.) makes her international racing debut alongside Sophia Denison-Johnston (Berkeley, Calif.)

Romania, Italy and Greece took the top three spots last year. The U.S. placed 11th. The duo will race against 17 other crews in Poland.

Men’s Quadruple Sculls (BM4x)

Baxter Call (Vashon Island, Wash.), Alexandr Lilichenko (Orinda, Calif.), Jesse Maritz (Stanwood, Wash.), Jacob Plihal (Vashon Island, Wash.) will try to improve on the United States’ 14th-place finish from last year. Plihal is the lone returnee from the boat.

Canada narrowly beat out France last year to cross the line first, while Belarus took bronze. This year, the U.S. will take on 17 other crews.

Lightweight Men’s Quadruple Sculls (BLM4x)
Chase Deitner (Perth, Australia), Jimmy Francis (St. Louis, Mo.), Danny Madden (New Rochelle, N.Y.) and Sam Melvin (Costa Mesa, Calif.) will take on 12 other crews in this year’s regatta.

Francis and Madden both competed at last year’s world championships. Francis finished 32nd in the lightweight single sculls and Danny Madden finished 22nd in the lightweight double. The U.S. finished in 11th last year in the event. Switzerland took home the gold, followed by Austria and Ireland.

Women’s Quadruple Sculls (BW4x)

Three former junior national team athletes will race at the World Rowing Under 23 Championships in the women’s quadruple sculls for the first time after competing on the international stage in the junior category.

Claire Campbell (New Canaan, Conn.) competed in 2014 and 2017 at the World Rowing Junior Championships in the women’s double sculls and single sculls, placing 12th and 13th, respectively. Arianna Lee (Folsom, Calif.) raced at the 2015 World Rowing Junior Championships in the women’s pair, bringing home a bronze medal. Isabella Strickler (Grosse Pointe, Mich.) finished seventh in the women’s double sculls at the 2015 Junior World Rowing Championships. The three rowers will be joined by Megan Hinkle (Troy, Ohio), who is making her national team debut.

The U.S. is one of eight entries in the quad. Last year, the U.S. finished sixth overall with Great Britain, Australia and Germany winning the medals.

Lightweight Women’s Quadruple Sculls (BLW4x)

The lightweight women’s quadruple sculls of Olivia Farrar (Pittsford, N.Y.), Janice Hagerman (Boxford, Mass.), Grace Joyce (Northfield, Ill.) and Liza Ray (Miami, Fla.) will take on six other boats in Poland.

Farrar finished 11th in the lightweight double sculls last year and 15th in the the lightweight double sculls in 2016. Hagerman is making her return to the boat after finishing seventh last year. Joyce and Ray are making their national team debuts.

Last year, Italy, The Netherlands and Germany won the medals.

Men’s Pair (BM2-)

Aidan Bridwell (Redding, Conn.) and Louis Pratt (Arlington, Mass.) are racing for the first time at the U23 championships.
In 2017, the men’s pair finished .02 seconds behind Serbia for the bronze medal. Romania placed first and France took second. This year, Bridwell and Pratt will compete against 20 other crews.

Lightweight Men’s Pair (BLM2-)

Luke Smith (Tampa, Fla.) and Alexandar Damjanovic (Alexandria, Va.) are racing for the first time at the U23 championships.

The U.S. took ninth last year, with Italy, Turkey and Ireland winning the medals. The bow seat from Italy’s gold-winning crew is back again this year. Smith and Damjanovic will take on a nine other crews.

Women’s Pair (BW2-)

Alina Hagstrom (Seattle, Wash.) and Regina Salmons (Methuen, Mass.) will make up the duo competing against Australia, Belarus, Canada, Chile, Croatia, Spain, Great Britain, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Romania and Russia.

Hagstrom is racing for the first time internationally, while Salmons won gold in the four and eight at the 2016 World Rowing Under 23 Championships.

The U.S. won bronze last year in the women’s pair. Chile took first and Australia crossed next, just 0.2 seconds in front of the U.S.

Lightweight Women’s Pair (BLW2-)

Caroline O’Brien (Darien, Conn.) and Sarah Maietta (Wayland, Mass.) will make history as the first U.S. women to compete in this event and personal history as they race for the first time internationally. This is the first year that the lightweight women’s pair will be contested at the World Rowing Under 23 Championships. The event only has four entries. Germany, Hungary and Italy make up the other boats.

Men’s Four (BM4-)

Alexander Wallis (Cupertino, Calif.), Andrew Knoll (Greenback, Tenn.), Hunter Hodges (Seattle, Wash.) and Eli Maesner (Redmond, Wash.) will race in the men’s four against 14 other crews. Wallis finished 10th in the eight at the 2016 World Rowing Under 23 Championships. Wallis, Knoll, Hodges and Maesner finished eighth in the four at the 2018 World Rowing Cup III.

In 2017, the U.S. placed ninth overall in the event. Australia claimed gold, while Great Britain followed in second and Austria in third.
Women’s Four (BW4-)

Meghan Gutknecht (Guilderland, N.Y.), Niamh Martin (Seattle, Wash.), Teresa Rokos (Pasadena, Calif.) and Chase Shepley (Crystal Lake, Ill.) make up the women’s four.

Gutknecht has international experience in multiple age categories. She finished sixth in the quadruple sculls at the 2017 World Rowing Under 23 Championships and third in the quadruple sculls at the 2015 World Rowing Junior Championships. Martin, Rokos and Shepley will race internationally for the first time.

In 2017, the U.S. women placed 10th in the four. The Netherlands took gold, Romania silver and Germany bronze. This year, the U.S. will race Belarus, China, Denmark, Great Britain, Germany, Greece, Italy, New Zealand, Romania and Russia.

Men’s Four with Coxswain (BM4+)

After finishing on the podium with a bronze medal at the 2017 World Rowing Under 23 Championships, the men’s four will feature a lineup of athletes almost entirely new to the world championship stage. Alex Miklasevich (Pittsburgh, Pa.) finished 10th in the four at the 2014 World Rowing Junior Championships and eighth in the four with coxswain at the 2013 World Rowing Junior Championships. Woods Connell (Bethesda, Md.), Peter Arata (Bellevue, Wash.), William Creedon (Denver, Colo.) and Viggo Hoite (Berkeley, Calif.) complete the rest of the boat.

This year, the men will row against crews from Australia, Denmark, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, New Zealand, Romania, Russia and Ukraine.

Last year, Italy won gold, followed by Great Britain.

Women’s Four with Coxswain (BW4+)

Izzi Weiss (Chicago, Ill.), Sarah Johanek (Cleveland, Ohio), Samantha Lamos (Petaluma, Calif.), Jennifer Mundelius (Danville, Calif.) and Carlisle Wheeler (Brewster, Mass.) will race in the first-ever women’s four with coxswain event at the under 23 world championships. Wheeler is the only experienced international athletes, having placed 10th in the four at the 2017 World Rowing Under 23 Championships.

The U.S. will compete in a field of five boats.

Men’s Eight (BM8+)
The men’s eight is stacked with seven athletes who have competed on the world championship level across junior and under 23 categories.

Chris Carlson (Bedford, N.H.) and Michael Grady (Pittsburgh, Pa.) will make a repeat appearance in the men’s eight after finishing fourth last year, just three seconds off Great Britain and the medal podium. Grady also competed in the World Rowing Junior Championships in 2013 and 2014, finishing eighth in the four with coxswain and ninth in the eight, respectively.

Arne Landboe (Shoreline, Wash.) raced last year in the men’s four with coxswain, which won the bronze medal, along with Rielly Milne (Woodinville, Wash.). Landboe also was a part of the 2016 crew that took sixth in the same event. As a coxswain, Milne has competed at the U23 championships every year since 2015. In 2015 and 2016, he placed sixth in the men’s four with coxswain.

In 2015, Justin Best (Kennett Square, Pa.) and Andrew Gaard (Madison, W.I.) won silver in the men’s eight at the World Rowing Junior Championships. Gaard also finished 11th in the four with coxswain at the 2014 World Rowing Junior Championships.

Brennan Wertz (Mill Valley, Calif.) competed at the 2016 World Rowing U23 Championships in the men’s pair, winning a bronze medal. Previously, he rowed at the 2014 World Rowing Junior Championships in the men’s eight that placed ninth.

Sam Halbert (Redmond, Wash.) and Madison Molitor (Moses Lake, Wash.) will make their national team debut at the 2018 World Rowing Under 23 Championships.

Last year, the U.S. men finished in fourth place overall behind the winning crew from The Netherlands, Romania and Great Britain.

This year, the U.S. will take on 10 other crews from Canada, France, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Netherlands, Poland, Romania, Russia and the Ukraine.

Women’s Eight (BW8+)

Elise Beuke (Sequim, Wash.), Claire Collins (McLean, V.A.), Brooke Pierson (Alexandria, V.A.), Alison Rusher (West Bend, W.I.) and Leigh Warner (Portland, O.R.) are all World Rowing Under 23 Championship veterans having competed last year. Beuke, Collins and Warner all raced in the eight that took second place. Rusher placed 10th in the women’s four, while Pierson won bronze in the women’s pair.

Marlee Blue (Seattle, Wash.) raced at the World Rowing Under 23 Championships in 2016 and won medals at the World Rowing Junior Championships in 2014 and 2015.
Kaitlyn Kynast (Ridgefield, Conn.) makes her first appearance at the U23 level. Kynast helped lead the U.S. to a gold medal in the four at the 2015 World Rowing Junior Championships. She won a bronze medal in the pair at the 2016 World Rowing Junior Championships and another bronze in the four at the 2017 World Rowing Junior Championships.

Liliane Lindsay (Harrison, N.Y.) placed third in the women's pair at the 2014 World Rowing Junior Championships and fifth in the women's eight at the 2013 World Rowing Junior Championships.

Hadley Irwin (Washington, D.C.) will make her international debut.

The U.S. has won gold in the event seven of the last 11 years. Last year, Canada took the top spot over the U.S.

The U.S. will take on eight other crews in 2018.

About USRowing

USRowing is a nonprofit membership organization recognized by the United States Olympic Committee as the national governing body for the sport of rowing in the United States. USRowing selects, trains and manages the teams that represent the U.S. in international competition, including the world championships, Pan American Games, Olympic Games and Paralympic Games.

More than 85,000 individuals and 1,350 member organizations strong, USRowing serves and promotes the sport on all levels of competition. USRowing membership reflects the spectrum of American rowers – juniors, collegians, masters and those who row for recreation, competition or fitness.

In 1982, the United States Rowing Association was formed by the merger of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, founded in 1872, and the National Women's Rowing Association, established in the early 1960s. USRowing brought these two organizations together with a name incorporating both men and women and reflecting the broader interests of rowing. In 1985, the organization moved from Philadelphia, Pa., to Indianapolis, Ind., home of several other Olympic sport governing bodies; and in 1994, Indianapolis became the only U.S. city to host a world rowing championship. In February 2006, USRowing moved its corporate headquarters to Princeton, N.J.

USRowing registers hundreds of regattas across the country each year, ensuring they are run under specific safety guidelines. The association also provides programs to educate referees and coaches. USRowing stages national championship regattas annually and conducts regional championships and national team selection events.

USRowing is a member of the United States Olympic Committee and Federation Internationale des Societes D’Aviron (FISA), the international rowing federation.

Glossary of Rowing Terms

Bow: The forward section of the boat. The first part of the boat to cross the finish line. Also, the person in the seat closest to the bow, who crosses the finish line first.

Button: A wide collar on the oar that keeps it from slipping through the oarlock.

Coxswain: The person who steers the shell and is the on the water coach for the crew.

Deck: The part of the shell at the bow and stern that is covered with fiberglass cloth or a thin plastic.

Ergometer: Rowers call it an “erg.” It’s a rowing machine that closely approximates the actual rowing motion. The rowers’ choice is the Concept2, which utilizes a flywheel and a digital readout so that the rower can measure his “strokes per minute” and the distance covered.

Gate: The bar across the oarlock that keeps the oar in place.

Lightweight: Refers to the rowers, not the boats; there is a maximum weight for each rower in a lightweight event as well as a boat average.

Oar: Used to drive the boat forward; rowers do not use paddles.

Port: The left side of the boat, while facing forward, in the direction of the movement.

Power 10: A call for rowers to do 10 of their best, most powerful strokes. It’s a strategy used to pull ahead of a competitor.

Repechage: The second-chance race, which ensures that everyone has two chances to advance from preliminary races since there is no seeding in the heats.

Rigger: The triangular shaped metal device that is bolted onto the side of the boat and holds the oars.

Run: The run is the distance the shell moves during one stroke. You can figure it by looking for the distance between the puddles made by the same oar.

Sculls: One of the two disciplines of rowing, where scullers use two oars or sculls.

Shell: Can be used interchangeably with boat.

Slide: The set of runners for the wheels of each seat in the boat.

Starboard: The right side of the boat, while facing forward, in the direction of movement.

Stern: The rear of the boat; the direction the rowers are facing.

Straight: Refers to a shell without a coxswain, i.e. a straight four or straight pair.

Stretcher or Foot stretcher: Where the rower’s feet go. The stretcher consists of two inclined footrests, which hold the rower’s shoes. The rower’s shoes are bolted into the footrests.

Stroke: The rower who sits closest to the stern. The stroke sets the rhythm for the boat; others behind him must follow his cadence.

Sweep: One of the two disciplines of rowing, where rowers use only one oar. Pairs (for two people), fours (for four people) and the eight are sweep boats. Pairs and fours may or may not have a coxswain. Eights always have a coxswain.

Swing: The hard to define feeling when near perfect synchronization of motion occurs in the shell, enhancing the performance and speed.
Viewer’s Guide & Frequently Asked Questions

The Race

All events at the World Rowing Championships are 2,000 meters, or approximately 1.25 miles. The racecourse is divided into six lanes and each 500-meter section is marked with buoys.

The race begins with all boats aligned at the start in the lanes they’ve been assigned. Individuals in each lane hold the stern of each boat steady while an official, known as the aligner, ensures that each boat is even with the others and squarely facing the course.

Each crew is allowed one false start; two means disqualification. If within the first 100 meters there is legitimate equipment breakage (e.g., an oar snaps in two), the race will be stopped and restarted with repaired equipment.

The stroke rate (the number of rowing strokes per minute that a crew is taking) is high at the start – maybe 45 to even 50 for an eight, 38 to 42 for a single scull. Then, the crew will “settle” into the body of the race and drop the rating back – 38 to 40 for an eight, 32 to 36 for a single. The coach and the way the race is going determine when the crew will sprint, but finishing stroke rates of 46+ in the last 200 meters aren’t unheard of. However, higher stroke rates are not always indicative of speed. A strong, technically talented crew may be able to cover more water faster than a less capable crew rowing a high stroke rate.

Unlike canoe/kayak competitions, rowers are allowed to leave their lanes without penalty, so long as they do not interfere with anyone else’s opportunity to win. An official follows the crews to ensure safety and fairness.

Despite the exhaustion that follows each race, the crew will row for five to 10 minutes afterwards in order to cool down. In rowing, the medal ceremonies include the shells. The three medal winning crews row to the awards dock, climb out of their shells and receive their medals before rowing away.

The Stroke

The whole body is involved in moving a shell through the water. Although rowing tends to look like an upper body sport, the strength of the rowing stroke comes from the legs.

The stroke is made up of four parts: catch, drive, finish and recovery. As the stroke begins, the rower is coiled forward on the sliding seat, with knees bent and arms outstretched. At the catch, the athlete drops the oar blade vertically into the water.
At the beginning of the drive, the body position doesn’t change – all the work is done by the legs. As the upper body begins to uncoil, the arms begin their work, drawing the oar blades through the water. Continuing the drive, the rowers move their hands quickly into the body, which by this time is in a slight “layback” position, requiring strong abdominal muscles.

During the finish, the oar handle is moved down, drawing the oar blade out of the water. Then, the rower “feathers” the oar – turning the oar handle – so that the oar blade changes from a vertical position to a horizontal one. The oar remains out of the water as the rower begins recovery, moving the hands away from the body and past the knees. The body follows the hands and the sliding seat moves forward until, knees bent, the rower is ready for the next catch.

The Equipment

Oars

Oars move the boat through the water and act as balancers. Sweep oars are longer than sculling oars and may have wooden handles instead of rubber grips. The shaft of the oar is made of extremely lightweight carbon fiber instead of the heavier wood used years ago. The popular “hatchet” blade – named because of its cleaverlike shape – is about 20 percent larger than previous blades. Its larger surface area has made it the almost universal choice among elite level rowers.

The Boats – Sculls and Shells

All rowing boats can be called shells. Rowing boats with scullers in them (each person having two oars) are called sculls, e.g. single scull, double scull, quadruple scull. So, all sculls are shells but not vice versa. Originally made of wood, today’s boats – especially those used in competition – are made of honeycombed carbon fiber. They are light and appear fragile but are crafted to be strong and stiff in the water.

The smallest boat – the single scull – is approximately 27 feet long and as narrow as 10 inches across. At 58 feet, the eight is the longest boat on the water. The oars are attached to the boat with riggers, which provide a fulcrum for the levering action of rowing. Generally, sweep rowers sit in configurations that have the oars alternating from side to side along the boat. But sometimes, the coach will rig the boat so that two consecutive rowers have their oars on the same side in order to equalize individual athlete power.

Rowing Quick Facts

Rowing is one of the original sports in the modern Olympic Games. Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the modern Olympics, was a rower.

Eight oared shells are about 60 feet long, about 20 yards on a football field.
Rowing was the first intercollegiate sport contested in the United States. Yale College founded the first collegiate boat club in the U.S. in 1843.

Physiologically, rowers are superb examples of physical conditioning. Cross-country skiers and long-distance speed skaters are comparable in terms of the physical demands the sport places on the athletes.

An eight, which carries more than three quarters of a ton (1,750 pounds), may weigh as little as 200 pounds. The boats are made of fiberglass composite material.

Singles may be as narrow as 10 inches across, weigh only 30.86 pounds, and stretch nearly 27 feet long.

FISA, the international governing body of the sport, requires all eights used in international competition to be sectional, so that crews who must disassemble and ship their boats overseas in standard shipping containers will not be at a disadvantage.

The first amateur sport organization was a rowing club, Philadelphia’s Schuylkill Navy, founded in 1858.

From 1920 through 1956, the United States won the gold medal in the men’s eight at every Olympic Games.

The first national governing body for a sport in the United States was for rowing. Founded as the National Association for Amateur Oarsmen in 1872, it was changed in 1982 to the United States Rowing Association.

FISA, the first international sports federation, was founded in 1892.

Dr. Benjamin Spock, the famous doctor, was an Olympic rower in 1924 and won a gold medal in the eight. Legendary Hollywood actor Gregory Peck rowed at the University of California in 1937.

Physiologists claim that rowing a 2,000-meter race – equivalent to 1.25 miles – is equal to playing back to back basketball games. All Olympic events are contested over a 2,000-meter course with six lanes. In the 1976, 1980, and 1984 Olympics, women raced 1,000 meters.
